

Transform Yourself Together

A Transformational Change Masterclass

October 2025 – March 2026

Hybrid Program

INTRODUCTION

Transformation is fundamentally an experiential journey - one that is led by a yearning. We often start with a sense of quiet, of something still missing, of a 'fertile void' which we must meet and explore within ourselves as a first step towards transformation.

Our clients, organisations, communities, and systems are asking us to step into this fertile void to guide others through complexity and chaos – to solve problems we have never encountered before.

This program is about exploring this edge, finding the threshold of transformation that awaits you and your work, and making a meaningful impact to enable change now and well into the future.

“If there is no transformation inside of us, all the structural change in the world will have no impact on our institutions.”
– Peter Block

Intended Audience: Coaches, Organisation Development practitioners, Learning and Development professionals, Facilitators, Change Leaders, Activists

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

1. Increase self-awareness through cultivating a more integrated presence that draws on the somatic, cognitive, emotional, and relational aspects of ourselves
2. Learn and apply the latest knowledges and practices that inform change in complex environments, including the model of Transformational Change Loops
3. Bring together embodied presence and transformative concepts and practices, to be able to intervene more effectively at the intra-personal, interpersonal, group, and organization levels of human systems
4. Practice coaching others to co-create solutions
5. Make real progress on a live issue or project that you are working on

At the end of the program, you will come out with (1) a Possibility Statement - a clear and compelling declaration of intent to live into service and inspire change (2) Development Plan to track and continue your journey (3) Presentation of your learnings and how you will apply it to your project/challenge

PROGRAM DESIGN

The design is anchored by a 7 step process model that guides people through a transformative process. Our design has distinct differentiators:

- Praxis: we anchor through a process model (theory) and also to what emerges (practice)
- Whole system: we track development at the intra and interpersonal level as well as the group and systems level
- “Whole intelligence”: we rely on somatic, cognitive, intuitive, and emotional intelligence as data
- We leverage evidence based theories, and evidence making, practicing two new concepts including (1) co-transformation and (2) generative learning
- Application: we focus on action learning, taking what we learn and applying it to a real life project / problem through the program
- Community – we build a strong container of community to guide group development and support

GUEST FACULTY

In module 1, we will spend one day on a ranch with:

Herb Stevenson, aka One White Horse Standing & Jackie Lowe Stevenson - where we will be discovering ourselves as part of the land, through the horses, and through indigenous practices.

WHY JOIN US

- Make space for deep personal reflection into your purpose and practice of change
- Learn the latest theories and practices that are informing the "industry" of change
- Apply these practices in a safe learning space, using your self as instrument to change. Aka practice change on yourself!
- Hone your skills to intervene more effectively at the personal, relational, organisational or societal level
- Make real progress on a live issue or project that you are working on
- Meet likeminded practitioners to network with and share knowledge, resources, and wisdom

The world isn't getting any easier or slower. So it's up to us to find the space to develop the skills we need to thrive. This is your invitation to the threshold.

“Complexity theory can foster an invaluable flexibility of perspectives and awaken us to our true, deep intimacy with the larger whole, so that we might return to what we once had: our birthright of being one with all”
